298: Yannick Riemer / Still no life on planet earth (5) (2021)

Street signs, icons, cave paintings, runes, logos, magical signs, technical drawings, random observations, houses, jewellery, flags, uniforms, structures. Everything that stands up to an initial intuitive assessment is recorded. In his series Still no Life on Planet Earth, Yannick Riemer develops his own cryptic language. Starting from a situation in which human life remains visible only in traces, Riemer creates a lexical collection of signs, repeatedly alienating and transforming them. In his paintings, he works with different techniques, which he superimposes in a kind of layering, visualising the various narrative fragments that he combines in a collage-like manner.

Yannick Riemer (* 1990) studied at the Berlin University of the Arts and graduated as a master student. After various scholarships, including Schlingensief's Operndorf Afrika and the Nelimarkka Museo in Finland, he lives and works in Berlin.
